Ford's 351 Cleveland

was designed to be a

'mid-sized' V-8 engine, and was developed for higher performance use upon its launch in late 1969 for the 1970 models. This unique design proved itself under the hood of Ford's Mustang, among other high performance cars. The Cleveland engine addressed the major shortcoming of the Windsor engines that preceded it, namely cylinder head air flow.

Renewed enthusiasm in this engine has spawned an Basic dimensions and engine, along with tips

Written with high performance in mind, both traditional power tricks and methods to increase efficiency of these specific engines are shared. With the influx
