My conclusion of the ZENOAH G20 Gasoline Engine is, it's a magnificent engine! While it does weigh about double what a glow engine weighs, the performance is SUPREME. Your aircraft stays clean, fuel is cheap, and a G20 flies a long time on 8 ounces of gas.

You asked for it; you got it. Introducing the G26ei—the second electronic ignition engine in the Zenoah line. What makes this engine even better is the 10% reduction in weight—that's six ounces lighter than the G26 engine with magneto. The electronic ignition makes the hand start even easier, and the G26ei also has smoother transition and better idle.

Known in the USA as the Zenoah G20EI, this new engine has been specially designed by Komatsu Zenoah's engineers for model aircraft and to power model helicopters and racing boats. The extra mounting lugs on the crankcase are provided for the latter two purposes.

The engine is a Zenoah G20 that is sourced from Horizon. The current frame is G10, but a carbon fiber version will be produced at a later date. This model will be available with either a Predator rotor head (HT version) or a revised and upgraded NX-50 style head (LT version) that has had its shafts and bearings enlarged.

Pretty much on par with most other 20 cc gasoline engines like the DLE and such. The DLE may be a bit more powerful but I have not run one in person. That's just by looking at the specs on paper. However while the DLE weighs 2 1/2 pounds the Zenoah is pushing a whopping 4 pounds. So the question is what airplane on the market will fit the Zenoah?
